

KISSING IN THE RAIN

We sat on the dock, with our feet in the water
Of the pond by my uncle's farm
I didn't think much of how our toes touched
Or the goosebumps up and down my arm
I remember your pale freckled shoulders
How you looked at me through squinted eyes
We were 15 and innocent as the sky was clear
And that day the sun was shining bright

Then the sky grew dark
The wild geese flew away
The lightning sparked
And the blood raced in my veins
Right there my whole world
Suddenly changed
You and I were kissing in the rain

Well, Mom used to say: girl you're so naive
Like a butterfly dancing in the wind
One of these days that wind's gonna change
And thunderclouds might be rolling in
Yeah, I knew that I would be changing
Though I didn't know the time would come so soon
But the eye of the storm seemed to be your gaze
On that crazy wet summer afternoon

When the sky grew dark
The wild geese flew away
The lightning sparked
And the blood raced in my veins
Right there my whole world
Suddenly changed
When you and I were kissing in the rain
You and I were kissing in the rain

Now those innocent times seem so far away
And the love that we might have shared is gone
But I'll think of you for the rest of my days
Whenever I'm outside getting rained on

(Chorus)

(Words & Music by: Marc Kuchner)